- I built a property business from nothing to £250,000 revenue in its first year, at roughly a 75% margin — and I still run it every day.
- Almost all of that came through relationships: a council that kept extending placements, landlords who handed me more houses, a client who sent me his mates. I don't advertise much. I keep my word and people come back.
- Before property I was a chef — private dining for high-profile clients in their own homes, EDF Energy's international guests, and a stint in Raymond Blanc's kitchen at Le Manoir. That's where I learned standards, and how to be trusted in someone's house.
- This year I've built a Dubai desk — the data, the developers, the numbers — but I haven't sold there yet. I want to learn it on the ground, with a brokerage whose name I'd be proud to put next to mine.

EXPERIENCE

Founder — Sam n Harv (S L Grants Ltd)

June 2025 — present · UK South West

My business. £250k revenue in year one at roughly 75% margin — built on relationships, not ad spend. My brother Harvey and I now work together and are expanding it as a pair.

- Council. Started with one placement. Ran it so well — inspection-ready, every week — that the local authority has kept placing with us for over a year.
- Landlords. Guaranteed-rent agreements on houses I operate myself. Pay on time and look after the house, and the same landlord hands you the next one — one of ours has two houses with us and says so on Google.
- Investors. Sourced deals for a serviced-accommodation operator who says, publicly, that our deals "added six figures in revenue" to his business. Two paid deposits on sourcing agreements this year.
- The numbers first. I built our underwriting model — cash purchase, 75% refinance, every cost in — and I model the worst case before I show anyone the best case. If it only works in the best case, I don't bring it.
- Dubai, in preparation. Sixteen years of Land Department data turned into published analysis; a unit-by-unit showcase across Binghatti, Damac, Sobha, Emaar, Danube, Ellington and Aldar from their own price lists. Research, not sales — yet.
- The rest. Built the brand and website myself, a 32-step sales process, the content, and a partner chain for finance, build, furnishing and management — all through people I've met face to face this year.
- What it actually took. Long days and longer hours. Hundreds of cold outreaches and follow-ups that went nowhere before the ones that didn't. Mistakes that cost money, and the discipline to own them, write down what I learned, and not repeat them.

Private Chef — Samuel's Food

April 2025 — present · nationwide

Private dining for high-profile individuals in their homes, hired houses and venues across the country. Started alongside the TNS role; within three months it was doing well enough to leave.

- Every booking sold, priced, sourced, cooked and served by me, for clients who could eat anywhere. Repeat bookings by referral. The standard is on the site: samuelsfood.co.uk.
- What transfers: being trusted in someone's home with their family, their guests and their standards — and being invited back.

EXPERIENCE, CONTINUED

Chef — TNS Catering, for EDF Energy
January 2025 — June 2025 · Bridgwater & Cannington

High-end private dining for EDF staff and visiting high-profile guests from around the world at the Hinkley Point operation.

- Executive-level hospitality to a multinational client: discretion, consistency, and guests who notice everything.

Chef de Partie / Sous Chef — agency placements
April 2021 — December 2024 · South West

- Consistent weekly placements across venues and menus as CDP, rising to sous chef; ran sections and services in kitchens I'd often never seen before that morning.

Support Worker — The Brandon Trust
August 2020 — April 2021

- Supported adults with learning disabilities to live independently: care plans, risk assessments, finances, medication, community. Care Certificate and PBM trained. The grounding behind the supported-accommodation placements I now run for a local authority.

Commis / Chef — Belmond Le Manoir aux Quat'Saisons
October 2019 — March 2020 · Oxfordshire

- Raymond Blanc's two-Michelin-star kitchen, a brigade of twenty. Where I learned what a standard actually is.

Earlier — The Pony & Trap (Michelin-starred) · The Nut Tree · CSI International · B&Q 2018 — 2019

- First kitchens at seventeen and eighteen — including the Michelin-starred Pony & Trap and private events with its chef.

HOW I WORK

- Integrity first. I put "character over commission" on my business cards and I mean it: I'd rather lose the fee than the client, and I tell people not to buy when the numbers say so.
- Relationships are the business. Nearly every pound I've earned has come from someone who already trusted me — a council officer, a landlord, a client's friend. I build slowly and keep people for years.
- Built from zero, with my own money. I know what it costs to win a client, keep one, and deliver after the sale — because I've done all three on a shoestring.
- Comfortable with wealth. Years in the homes of high-net-worth clients as their chef. No pitch, no pressure, every detail done first.
- I'll bring leads, not wait for them. I make my own content, run a WhatsApp-first enquiry flow, and I'm in London often, building the investor list.
- I've failed and kept going. Building from zero means most of what you try doesn't work. I follow up until it does, and I'm honest about the mistakes — with clients and with myself.
